

METHODS OF MONEY REFORM

to meet in extraordinary session for their consideration
ALONZO B. CORNELL.
Ithaca, N. Y., July 15, 1893.

Sir: How many Democrats voted for what is known as the Sherman Silver act? My recollection is that the majority vote in both branches was composed entirely of Republicans while the minority was composed of Democrats.

(The so-called Sherman Silver law finally passed the House of Representatives by a vote of 122 to 90. The yeas were 121 Republicans and one "Wheeler," and the nays were all Democrats. Fifteen Democrats and one Republican were unpaired and not voting. In the Senate the vote was

—THE RECEPTION OF THE LIEDERKRANZ SINGERS.

The singers brought from the cities visited by the singers. The singers marched into the hall headed by the band and were received with loud applause. Ex-President Hoffmann presided, the president, William Steinway, being unable to attend. He made a speech of welcome. Hubert Cillis told of the travels and adventures of the singers and there were numerous other speakers. Three songs written for the occasion by Leo Foeßling, Mrs. Flora Foeßling and E. Lothar turned singers sang "Greeting," by Zoellner; "Morning Song," by Rietz; and "Three Roses." The reception committee consisted of W. Vigelius, Dr. Hausner, F. May, Albus Lersel and Robert Kaemper.

— KNOCKED DOWN BY THE GRAND JURYMAN.

E. J. Peck reported for "The New-York Morning Advertiser," went to Paterson, N. J., yesterday afternoon, to make an appeal that the report of the proceedings of the grand jury at Cyril B. Forbes, "The Advertiser" was furnished to him by (published in Forbes, a member of the grand jury). When about to leave justice senior's office, Forbes entered, and struck Peck a heavy blow in the face. Peck was knocked over a table, and fell against the judge. Forbes was arrested, but was released on furnishing bail.
